“ I just discovered that Freddie or Derf (Fred spelled backwards) passed away more than two years ago. I'd been searching for him because my bother, Jack, also deceased was a classmate of Fred's. Jack, his wife, and his only child all died within three years of each other - an entire family gone in what seemed like the blink of an eye. I wanted to talk to Fred because he and Jack were close friends and I'm in the beginning stages of writing a memoir about my brother. Fred was one of the most intelligent, insightful, and dryly funny people I'd ever met, and I desperately wanted his take on my brother. I feel for Leslie and the rest of the Zazella family. Fred was a lovely young man, and I'm sure he didn't change with the years. As such, he was a great loss, even for those of us who knew him oh so long ago. Condolences.
