“ I'm sorry to have learned of Brian's passing - I worked with him and really enjoyed listening to him talk about pretty much anything. As a relatively new engineer, he was able to break things down and explain them in a style that I still emulate today. I also liked that he wasn't super macho like a lot of military guys were - my favorite saying of his, when I talked about not liking super spicy food, was "pain is not a flavor". His storytelling ability was such that, when he started on something humorous, I knew I was going to laugh. He was always eager to help and learn, and I considered him a friend. He truly loved his family, and I'm happy to share more memories - I went to the same college he did (though at a different time), so feel free to look me up on LinkedIn.

“ Please accept my condolences. I'm very sad to hear of Brian's passing. I worked with Brian and sat right next to him in the office. I have not seen him for a few months due to the office being closed for virus precautions. He was a super guy and always willing to help those less knowledgeable than himself. He was very proud of Jeff and spoke often about him.

“ Working with Brian was nothing short of a pleasure each and every time. He never held his intelligence and expertise above the conversation. He explained things to the level you needed and made you feel better about the situation. I'm sure he dealt with those outside of work with similar respect and reasonableness. There are many who will experience a void when seeking out Brian out of reflex. MS

“ I'm just seeing this and am heart broken I missed his service. I spoke to him a few weeks ago and am thankful we connected after years of not hearing from him. We sailed with Brian on Lake Lanier, Hobie Fleet 12 is where we first met and went cruising with him in the BVI's years ago. We are going to miss him dearly. Our thoughts and prayers go out to his family. Tammy and Joey Duran
