“ Chris, I never said good-bye

*Your look is frozen back in time
Today, you smile from pictures left
We never got to say good-bye
How do we come to terms with death?*

*If we could have at least one day, one hour left
To convey all love we have for you...
But in the life's turmoil we failed to see that death was creeping
And without explaining why, while we slept,
You passed away and never said good-bye*

*I feel that you are everywhere
Your presence is so bold engraved
In things and lives you often touched
If I could only reach out my hand
And never fear discontent..., but I do so
How do I come to terms with death?*

*If I could fast forward the time and see you yet again
God would bestow upon us whirlpools of happiness
And yet for now, my mind is numb and filled with much regret
I never got to say good-bye and still can't come to terms with death.
Mama*

“ Chris, - How right I was to call you An Angel in Disguise! For my family, you will always be an angel whose hobby is to drop happiness (gifts) at our door. How in the world you were able to hide such a beautiful heart? What drove you to help us when you did not even get to brag about it? What inspired you to do such great deeds without any recognition or rewards? You got us all - Fly high, Chris. Fly high!!

“ Christian's departure left behind a great deal of pain for friends and family. Many of our friends asked what happened with Chris - according to medical records, Chris' heart was clogged (2 arteries by 70% and a third one by 50%) In combination with a respiratory virus, it was fatal. We will miss Chris and remember him forever.

“ I met Chris only once. He was about one year old and his dad was proudly flaunting him in a stroller. I thought to myself "this kid looks like an angel".

...And now, after he joined his sister Georgia and all his ancestors, Chris has become a real angel, watching over his Mom, Dad, and his sisters.

Somn dulce!

“ It may be unconventional but it really feels weird to use my real name when you always knew me by an alias, so I'll address you in death as you knew me in life. Chris, I can say without a doubt that I will never forget the kindness and good will that I always associated you with. You've done so much for so many people, and never asked for thanks or even for recognition. It always hits the hardest when people like you leave us, both for those who knew you and for those who never had the chance. Wherever your consciousness has gone at this unfortunate crossroads, I hope you find peace. Thanks for everything you've done for me Chris, you will be missed.

“ We would like to express my sincere condolences to the family and the friends of Christian Cangeopol. The loss of a love one brings anguish of grief, but you can find comfort and hope in God's word, the bible. The promise of a resurrection at Acts 24:15; and the end death at Isaiah 25:8. In your time of sorrow, drawing closer to God in prayer will help you smile again. ~James 4:8.
