“ *Today, I finally remembered your last name and decided to look for you here on the internet. I entered Deborah and Clay Felton, and this was the first hit I got 🥹. I'm so broken-hearted. 💔 We became good friends in Richmond, Virginia in the late 80's, through Clay & Eddie. We never forgot you and Clay, Justin & Damon. I loved being your friend and the fun times when our families got together in those crazy "construction years", when the depression of the 80's led us all away from our home states. I'm so sad. 😞 How I wish this had turned out different. Our deepest condolences Clay, to you and the boys. We still live in Texas. In San Antonio... Rest In Peace Deborah..

“ Clay and sons, I am so sorry for your loss. I had the privilege of working with Deborah at Atlanta Casualty many years. We shared many hours in the carpool lane where we became good friends. She will always have a special place in my heart. Rest in peace, Deborah.
