“ *It's really hard to explain how I felt the day I found out you weren't here anymore, dad. Especially when you consider that I was incarcerated just like you were when pawpaw passed away... And I'll never forget the last words you ever spoke to me either. Since, at the time, I thought it was odd for you to tell me that you were proud of me... But I can see now why you did. And you know what? Even if you're not here anymore physically. I know you're somewhere looking down on me...so just know that I'm going to give you a reason to be proud of me again. Because I refuse to have my son grow up to find out his dad passed away while he was in prison too. Which I really wish you could see me now. Because I haven't even been out a month and I'm already doing better than I was before I went in. Only this time, not only have I been sober. Completely. But it's all legal. And is just a testimony to the power of prayer. And the power of Love. But most importantly...the power of God. Because He really has changed my life in so many ways you wouldn't believe. Which I would say that I wish you were here to see what He's done... But since you're already up there. Just tell him I said thank you. And that I love Him
And I love you too, dad... Hopefully you rest well*
