“ I was in total shock to find out Liz had passed. I moved to MD when she was in her onset of beginning stages of chemo and we lost touch. I was her assistant when I worked with her at GGC. Sad to hear the news but happy that there is no more suffering and she is free from pain. Wow!! Rest in peace now.

“ You are missed but you are free, Better fly while the rest of us caterpillars move slowly on waiting for our chance to join you. I will miss you and the magic you made with small moments!

“ I am so sorry for everyone's loss. I loved Liz dearly. She has always been such a force to contend with and cherish. We had fantastic times & some difficult ones too. One time, I gave her all of my old soccer jerseys. Most of them had my last name on them. I told her "no matter what, you can't wear these to soccer practice".....the very next day....she wore them to practice. ????? Always the Rebel! At times in the past we would drift apart, but we always reconnected. I am so grateful for her presence in my life as well as her family members. ?? Always.

“ Wade's message rang so true. I bought Liz a tee shirt that said, "I am silently correcting your grammar." Best of all, she was a fabulous teacher who made certain we know how to write, among other things, and she did so with humor and good cheer. We love you, Liz, and will miss you from now forever more.

“ Glad she is free of it, sad we are left without her. She moved us and we are grateful to have briefly been within her sphere of influence. Liz was an original and we loved her for it, I can hear her in my head proof-reading this even now...Peace to you.
