“ I visited uncle last year in Atlanta.

I remember his warmth and sense of humor. When I rang the bell, it was uncle who opened the door. I thought maybe he wouldn't recognize me, it had been a few years since we met and I think I had my N-95 mask on too. I said, "maybe you don't remember me, I'm Lavanya", and he greeted me with a huge smile and said, "I remember not only you, but also the guy you have picked out to marry," referring to my now husband who had attended my sister Betty's wedding with me as my my 1 (but not yet husband) a week earlier. Uncle had seen him in the wedding video. I was so touched that uncle cared about me and noticed and shared this with me. Uncle's warmth and compassion is something I will never forget.

I also remember how happy uncle was to be outside on the deck and he told me about the plants and pointed out deer tracks from the night before.

I'm glad to have spent those few days with you last year, Baby uncle, I will miss you so much ❤️

“ The Baby Chachan I knew was multifaceted.

The Baby Chachan I heard of from my dad and others was a hardworking, strong family man and my grandfather's main support system. He worked tirelessly for his family and siblings, sacrificing a lot for them.

Next was the Baby Chachan whom I saw from afar, symbolizing Kadanad for me. Always adorned in a white shirt and mundu, he commanded respect and admiration from everyone in our town. I cherish the memories of him taking care of me and Boban, during our trip with him and Joselin aunty to Idukki for a wedding, in the absence of my parents.

Next was the Baby Chachan I knew up close, after he moved to America. Despite missing his hometown greatly, he found his big and small joys here - Growing vegetables at Mathew Chettan and Deepa Chechi's place, embracing technology to connect back home. I remember a particularly tight hug from him in 2021 in Portland and his voice, filled with love, reminding me that he was getting old.

And today, I like to think that he is surrounded by Ammachi, Chachan, Mammchanpappan, Unnipappan, and his other loved ones who have passed before him. They gather together, reminiscing about the traditions of Malabar Koodiyettam and comparing the fertility of the soil to grow rubber there. In this serene setting, they share stories, spiky arguments, and cherished memories, their spirits forever intertwined in the fabric of our family's legacy.

“ I will forever be grateful to have spent a few days with BabiChachan earlier this month.

I left smiling and thinking about the way he replied to Deepa Chechy when she asked us to smile for a photograph ! “You have to say a joke, otherwise why would we !!! “

His positive attitude and string will was a blessing for all at home.

Hoping you get to hang out with Achachan, Mamachachan, ValiyaEchachan and Ammachi up above and smile watching over us. : 1:

We here will miss you esp Ammachi !

“ From my mom (Jane)

A tribute to my brother

*You taught us what selfless love is!
You held us together all through these years
You are the reason for our joyful childhood . You are so special and close to our hearts that we shared all the joys and sorrows*

*You cared for me since I was a baby .
I only had to keep my dress on the table
And it got ironed, ready for me to put on
You were more than a brother for us
You made sure that we lacked nothing*

*You were a great son for your parents
Your helping hand was everywhere
When they were young and old
When they were sick and bedridden
You cared for them like a baby*

*I will cherish the loving memories of learning the a-z of rubber trees,
planting, farming, moving around with you,
the enthusiastic conversations about politics,
world affairs and the list was endless.*

*You had many creative interests
I remember how we worked as a team making our own cots with bamboo, mattresses with cotton from our own trees, handcrafted bamboo baskets for home*

*You passed on your love and affection,
To your grandchildren and our children
with your charm, warmth and care
United they say you are special
They pay tribute to you standing beside you*

*God blessed you with a loving wife
And children who took utmost care of you
You made their life joyful and beautiful!
They made your dreams a reality*

*We wished you lived for many more years You are filled with so much goodness, we trust you are in God's hands
And experience eternal joy.*

May your soul rest in peace

We all love you and miss you till we meet again on the other side!

Your little sister@ 61

“ In loving memory of Baby Chachan, who graced our lives with his kindness and joy. Though Baby Chachan's time with my family was brief, the impact on our lives is everlasting.

In the midst of grief, let us hold onto the memory of Baby Chachan's spirit, a reminder of his life that touched us all. May the love and memories shared provide solace to those who mourn this precious soul.

I am sharing a picture when Baby Chachan attended my son's baptism, brought warmth to our heart.

Rest in peace, dear Baby Chachan. Your presence will forever be felt in the hearts of those who were fortunate enough to know you.
