“ Harold was my Uncle, and I remember him coming to stay with my sisters and I the night my brother was born. It was Christmas Eve. Harold drove from Smyrna, GA to Forrest Park, GA to stand guard, as we girls, ages 5, 6 and 7, snuggled in our beds waiting for Santa. Our Mother and Father peeped their heads in the bedroom door to say good bye before heading to the hospital. The next morning, Uncle Harold was in the family room with the Christmas tree lights on, and all our presents. We thought it was so funny to see (macho) Uncle Harold untying a multitude of wires that held our babydolls, their hair rollers, hairbrushes, and clothes to the cardboard backing. We giggled as he unpackage the Easy Bake Oven, and all of it's accessories. It was hysterical watching him be so busy with 3 girls on Christmas morning. You see, Harold had not been married, and had no children, at that time. He was a brick layer, he was rough and tough, and would otherwise have never picked up a doll baby. Us girls got so tickled we could hardly stop laughing. Uncle Harold, all our new toys, and no parents!!! We had a ball. Harold was a good sport, and enjoyed our laughter. He made it a wonderful Christmas Day. I can hardly remember ever laughing that hard again, plus we had a baby brother to welcome home. Thank you Uncle Harold for the wonderful Christmas memory.
