“ Nearly a year later, there is a blank spot for my best friend of 50 years.

We went to high school, then to Georgia State University and continued our friendship til his passing. Harry was always there to help, console, give advice. We so enjoyed our trips to Panama City/Angelos Steak House, Boston, the Grand Canyon, Cancun, our long conversations, movies and especially meals at The Varsity or Golden Coral. Harry was one of a kind - always enjoying life to the fullest and quite a story teller! He was a true man of the world, someone who knew something about everything, and a friend to all who met him. I miss you my friend but we will meet again. Wilson White

“ Have many fond memories of Harry. He, my husband and myself were friends many years ago. Harry loved to play the mystery man. He loved to wear the black shirt and black tie. We had to go to a showroom in downtown Atl; Harry told us to wait at the door. He went in to "CHECK the place out." He then came to the door and motioned us in. It made us look more important than we were. I had a death in my family and Harry went along with me to take "care of things". He would stand outside the door and watch. Everyone wondered who the mystery man was. He would come in the room and whispered in my ear, "I'm going for some coffee". Every one watched. When he returned, he came back into the room and whispered in my ear again, "I'm back". Everyone watched. Then he took his stance at the door. He did that several times. He really loved doing that, he knew everyone in there was watching him and talking about him. Later, some who ask, I told he was my bodyguard. My family members I told he was a very special friend just looking out for me. There will never be anyone else like our Harry James Gober.

“ It is a sad day when a man with all of the positives that made Harry the remarkable man he was passes away. The earth will be a lessor place without his presence.

“ So hard to write how you feel when you lose someone you've known your entire life
Harry was the gentlest person I've ever known. I never saw him, ever, with anger in his heart. My best memory of him was at the Starlight Drive-in. We were with Wilson, Harry and us kids. It was a horror movie and Harry reached back from the front seat and grabbed my leg; scared the daylights out of me ?? I screamed!! So funny now. I will always remember growing up with Wilson and Harry always around. I'll never forget you Harry. I remember you with nothing but fondness.....
