“ *My sweet cousin.
There aren't proper words for memorializing you. Most of the time, cousins build their core memories together during childhood. Although we got to make a few memories as adults, I'll always hold dear how your Momma would come kidnap me from my Daddy and we'd all have weekends full of pancake breakfasts, dancing silly to loud music, and endless rounds of playing hide & seek. Me, you, and Jeremy were always in cahoots about our hiding spots; three little musketeers. Swear.
When I got the news last Friday, it was absolutely devastating to me. I was driving through Lumpkin County, on Saturday, and all I could do was cry like a baby. It still doesn't feel real to me. Your candle went out way before it should have, but I pray you're whole, at peace, and right by your Momma and my sweet Aunt Brenda.
I love you, Jake.*
