“ Hey pop, I'm sorry I didn't write to you sooner. I will miss you dearly until the day I stroll over heaven with you. I remember when I was young I would eat apples with you and sit outside while Winston would sun himself. I love you pop. I will miss all the stories that you would tell me and listening to your records while we sang together. I will miss all the little things that made you smile and laugh. May you rest in peace pop ❤️🙏

Humming bird, and we baked him a home made chocolate cake and his soul was just filled with so much joy that day his smile was contagious. And if there was one thing pop had to have it was his chocolate. We always had him a big bowl of chocolate beside his chair and coming home with that big bag of chocolate his face would just light up. I use to love talking to pop and hearing his contagious laugh and seeing his gentle smile. I know one thing though, He never stopped talking about Katherine and how he couldn't wait till the day he “ Pop was a man who didn't ask for much. Making sure his needs and wishes were fulfilled we always made sure of two things he did ask for. And one thing pop loved to watch was the birds on the porch so we always made sure to keep his bird feed full as much as possible because boy did we go through it. There we're always birds in our yard but one bird in particular pop loved was humming birds so for one birthday of his we got him humming bird feeders and I painted him a humming bird, and we baked him a home made chocolate cake and his soul was just filled with so much joy that day his smile was contagious. And if there was one thing pop had to have it was his chocolate. We always had him a big bowl of chocolate beside his chair and coming home with that big bag of chocolate his face would just light up. I use to love talking to pop and hearing his contagious laugh and seeing his gentle smile. I know one thing though. He never stopped talking about Katherine and how he couldn't wait till the day he would see her again in heaven. pop finally got his one wish. And even though we will be down here mourning you. we will also be happy knowing you finally got your wish I can just see your smile now. You we're truly loved by myself Hannah duke and the following Haley duke , Cynthia Mauldin , and Lisa duke. And for the short time she got to know you Angela star who also loved you. We love you pop may you rest in peace.
