Her daughter Natalie, with whom she lived, was by her side. Lois was born in New York State, where she lived until she married the late Joseph A Hannan III in 1955. Her husband's career took them from Africa (where she learned to speak French) to Haiti, Trinidad, Jamaica, & Miami, FL, with many other countries in between. Lois was a very classy lady, who was always able to create a home for her family, no matter where in the world she found herself. Her innate grace, warmth and creativity as a hostess was instrumental in helping her husband's career with Texaco to flourish.

First and foremost, Lois was a devoted wife and mother. She was also a talented & creative floral designer, artist, crafter, chef and seamstress. In her later years she also worked in real estate, retail and secretarial. Lois had a green thumb and an artistic nature, and no matter where she lived had a spectacular garden. Lois enjoyed the outdoors and all that nature had to offer; it is where she found peace and contentment, especially at the beach. While raising four children overseas, Lois was an active volunteer in many organizations, and was always a gracious hostess to all visitors.
