“ Sweet Tio, there are no words to express the void that is left behind with your passing. My entire childhood was shaped by you....your wisdom, your kind heart, your loving nature. The memories are vast and priceless, and there will never be another soul like yours. Rest easy now, you will live in hearts forever.

"You can have comfort concerning those who have died and are asleep in Jesus."

Armando was one of the sweetest and gentle man that I have ever met. I was blessed to have known him. I pray for you now my friend Rose that the Lord Jesus will fill the empty part of your heart for the days ahead.

“ My earliest memory of my abuelo was him taking me to the beach. He loved the ocean and when I describe my abuelo to anyone I will always say that he smelled like the ocean. His things and even his house have that wonderful ocean scent. He was always happy and he would sneak a candy to you at the most precise time like he knew that you needed something sweet. He looked so handsome in his tuxedo when he walked me down the isle for my wedding. I didn't have my father there but I was lucky enough to have him there as a father figure in such a special time for me. We all called him abuelo dulce (candy grandpa) and last night as I was having jelly beans at his house after sharing memories of him. I felt that he was there with me sharing his happiness and his dulces. I love you abuelo and I will always feel like the luckiest person for having a wonderful and kind abuelo in my life.

“ My uncle Armand was a beautiful soul. The love between Tio and Rose was real. Just one look between them and their love showed true. Rose, I know that this is a difficult time for you but you can rest now. You took such good care of him and you can always look back and know that you were the love of his life. I love you both so much. I have the beautiful memory of our last time together which was two weeks before God called him home. He was so happy to see us. He saved up his last bit of energy for us. We love you.

“ Tio will always have a special place in our hearts; there was nobody like him in all the world. I treasure the memories we have of the time we spent together that one summer in Puerto Rico, the times he helped me out and encouraged me when I first picked up the guitar, and just his beautiful soul which shone through every smile. You will be missed Uncle Armand, God speed until we meet again.
