You have no idea how much I miss her! But I do know that she's finally with my brother Allen Garmon and watching down on me I think of them both now when I see that rainbow in their sky.

“ We met on the beach one day in 2018 and have remained friends since then. She swore that I rescued her from drowning but all I actually did was grab her arm and pull her back up on the sand bar where we were standing simply because she lost her footing. Very sweet and very sociable lady! One of the last times we spoke, we were going to read Stephen King's book, "The Institute." I already began and waited for her to get her copy because she saw the enthusiasm I had over it. I met some people who put her down but as far as I'm concerned, you couldn't find anyone else as loveable as she was.

So true brother I was there with her trying to help her out of her state of mind and bring her to God and I believe I completed my mission. Along with Allen Garmon that I spoke to on his death bed!
