Turner, Jr. and Hazel Vorus Turner. She is predeceased by her two sisters, Hazel Turner Kump and Martha Turner Smith. As a young girl, she excelled academically and graduated from LaGrange High School at the age of sixteen. She then attended Agnes Scott Women's College on a full academic scholarship. A member of Phi Mu Sorority, Billie graduated from the University of Georgia as an English Major with a Master's Degree in Education. While attending college, Billie met her husband, the late Henry Carson Smith, Jr. They raised three children together and lived in Atlanta and Buford, Georgia over the course of their marriage. As a prominent member of her community, Billie served as President of the Stonehedge Garden Club and member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was a dedicated member of Northside United Methodist Church, witnessing to many her passion of living and learning through scripture. One of a lost generation and true Southern Lady, she held dear the ideas of tradition, family, love and religion. All those who knew her will miss her passion, loving kindness, and quick wit. “ Just learned of Billie's death. So many good memories growing up as Sterling's friend and frequent visits to her house. Glad I saw her and Sterling at OK Café several years ago.

“ Dear Sterling and family,

Mrs. Smith was a very special person and I have good memories of her over the last several years. I remember going to dinner with Mrs. Smith and Sterling and being so nervous about my table manners. Our deepest sympathy from Kyle and me to all the family.

Love, Gayle

“ I am so sorry about Billy's death. She was in my Disciple class for many years and was a delight to be with. Since then I have seen her at Saint Anne's on Fridays when I go to get my hair done. She seemed fine just 2 weeks ago and was always cheerful and we would have a good chat about old times at Northside Church.. I will miss her very much. She was a delightful person. In Christ's love, Betty Wallace

“ Mrs. Smith was a wonderful example of class and dignity. I saw her weekly at church and at school. She was a wonderful person and even better mother to her children. I am sad that she is gone but understand she is in a better place.
