“ It is with great sadness that I received the news of Michelle's passing. My memories of interactions with Michelle as editor and mentor at Bellaonline.com were years past yet they are deep and lasting. We never met in person but her spirit is so strong and positive that she touched my heart from miles away. I remember her as being very giving, supportive, patient and encouraging to the new editors. Certainly, she was always courteous and kind to me. Her posts were funny and insightful, and it was clear that IRL, Michelle was well-loved and welcomed everywhere and by everyone who had the good fortune to meet her.

This is a hard time for this world, and we surely have lost a good soul to help us along. However, I feel that Michelle will always look out for her loved ones and any hapless soul who needs love and care. I often wonder why the good ones return so early but perhaps, it is because they not only deserve their celestial rewards but they gain more power to help others from their new vantage point.

Michelle would do that. I'm sure she returns to her true home with honors. My sincerest condolences to her loved ones who must bear the burden of sorrow and grief at this sad time of separation.
