“ I remember you exploding the multiple bags of chips, saying I love you , I like your shoes , I like your nails , doing your hip hop dance to worship and songs that you like to sing along , me attempting to have a meeting for the week and playing school with you and the gang , remembering to the tee some of your favorite songs and shows that we played over and over for you ... I wish I could get that 1 more I love you and having a better sister connection with you because I didn't know that your life was very unexpectedly cut short no offense but now that you have taught me that our life is very different and our lives are priceless and that things can go to 0 to 100 in a instant... Natalie.... I love you and I hope that you don't bug mom too much although your probably already are of all the stories that you encountered with down here with us and the stuff that we did ...
