

Nichole Leigh Kornman

March 16, 1987 - May 20, 2022

Nichole Leigh Kornman of Flowery Branch, Georgia passed out of our lives and into the here-after on the morning of May 20, 2022. She walked many paths during her 35 years of this Earthly incarnation, some that were high and some that were not. The most beautiful, joyful and light filled paths were with the children in her life: her two beloved daughters and her niece and nephew. With the children, she was her best. Always so sweet, loving, patient, supportive and FUN. She had an incredible artistic flair she shared with them in cookie baking, rock painting, sidewalk chalk... and one notorious Make-up Party. And they LOVED her for it. The darker walks led, as so frequently happens, to her tragically short time embodied on this Earth plane. Though peace was elusive for her, joy was not. Her joy, especially with her daughters was absolutely unbounded. May she also have now found peace. While we must say goodbye to her Earthly form, the bright light of love that she is now walks in spirit with those she left behind

“ It breaks my heart to be learning of Nikki's passing. She was the big sister of my first love, and took me under her wing without hesitation. It's been nearly 14 years since I saw her, save for a chance encounter at a graduation ceremony a few years back where she sweetly asked me how I was these days before we parted ways. She still crosses my mind on occasion; I think of her in my parenting, because she was the first woman to show me how to parent a young child, and she allowed me to babysit her daughter (alongside her little brother). She would give me clothes excitedly, do my hair, chat about life and exchange playlists, and indulge in coffee and Blue Moon when she would visit. She was a dream of a "big sister" figure, and such a stellar person. I typed her name into the Facebook search because she had crossed my mind after I made a recipe for my children that she taught me when I was in high school (pizza cups!) and I'm utterly shocked to know she is no longer here, loving and raising those beautiful children of hers. My heart and all my healing prayers go to Cathy, Cory, her daughters, and the rest of her family.

This photo is from right around when I met Nichole and I have always loved it so much.

Rest peacefully, beautiful 💕 you are loved endlessly and missed immensely.

“ Nikki,

It's been over a year now, I still miss you more than I could have known. Every sweet song is about you, all our songs that were our soundtrack of our love. I wish so badly that we had weathered the storm that we battled through together.

I never posted a memory on here because I could never find the right wording without writing a book's worth of material... I watched our video of Scarlett's 3rd Birthday when I gave her the big stuffed elephant that she adored so much. After watching, I felt the need to finally leave you a message.

I've attached some photos of us at our happiest as well as a few from our wedding day (even if it was a "t-shirt wedding" as you called it. I guess it never seemed so bad since the burning light of love outshined all outside circumstances.

I love you now, then and forever... soulmates never die.

Forever missing a piece of myself...

“ I don't know if this is the right place for this or not, but I feel like it must be said somewhere. Nichole was my first love and had such a profound effect on me and my life. It fills me with sorrow to hear about her passing.

She was a wonderful, caring person with a great sense of humor. She alone was the reason I was able to make it through military boarding school; I remember waiting every day at the mailbox for her letters. I deeply regret that I never told her about the impact she had on me. I will forever treasure our memories together.

My sincere condolences to her family and friends.

“ Thank you to everyone for all the kind words and sweet memories. She visited me in dreams last night. Chatted for a bit at the breakfast table, then left on her way to "go see Ally." Beautiful and comforting dream.

“ Last photos taken of Nichole 19 May 2022 late afternoon. Nichole reading a book about the Stars to her youngest daughter Scarlett. Thirty minutes later Scarlett falls asleep in her mamas arms. Nichole held Scarlett in her arms for at least an hour her last day.

Nichole was a neighbor of my who I watch grow up to be a beautiful young lady who loved her family. I remember hearing her and Ally playing on a swing in the back many times. We will definitely miss you Nichole and I know God watches over your girls. Praying for the family “ Nichole, the last 10 years we haven't been in touch often, but I will always appreciate the friendship we shared in our younger years from living with you over the summer in 2003 to hanging at your apartment in Oakwood and hanging out with David V. You were always such a kind friend and I loved your infectious smile. I hate that I won't have the chance to see it again.

“ I worked with this sweet girl for a short time. She was so upbeat and loved art and art forms as I. I laughed when she asked if I could a stained glass of a moth. She must have thought I was better than what I actually am!! Her stories about her girls and her laughter I do miss. I am praying for comfort for all who knew her. Mary Ann Farmer, aka Nana “ Nichole was not a fan of time. Specifically being on time. You had to be very careful with scheduling and time expectations. In 2 years I rarely witnessed her honor the shackles of time restraints. Though she was typically running late, she always showed up just in time to make the wait worth the while, every time.

I'm not alone in saying she deserved more time, and will be missed until it's my time to clock out.

My heart is heavier than I let on.

*Au revoir, Nikki.
Merci beaucoup.*

I love you most.
