“ First, my sympathies to Bonnie to Jim and Lee. This has got to be tough. Losing a guy that is a great of a guy is Frank is, it's just got to be tough so my my sympathies to you all.

I feel sure there will be times when you'll think about Frank and just in the pause of thinking about him with him being gone it will feel really empty but I also think with the type of guy that Frank was the longer you pause the bigger the emptiness will be. I am so sorry.

I remember the first time I met Frank McNail. I had met with Jim and we discussed some construction work and then Frank came into fill in some details and he invited me to go to lunch at Boston Market down in Duluth. It was the first time I met him and it was abundantly clear that Daddy Mac was, as we say in the South, the Mack Daddy! What a great great guy. I think Frank McNail was as honest as the day was long and when he would need to give me some information that I likely did not want to hear, he would pause and say, "I need to give you some information that you're not going to really want to hear but I need to give it to you anyway." Pretty rare in the construction business and yet it was so greatly appreciated. I always knew, if Frank said it, I could totally trust it.

Frank, you are greatly missed. That great smile and your honesty. And thanks for your service in the Navy to this great country.
