“ I have so many memories of Shawn. I knew Shawn since I was a kid. One of my fondest memories is when he had his blue ford escort and he taught me how to drive a manual transmission. We drove around the neighborhood over and over until I got it. I remember him being just being calm and us laughing. He was a great teacher, friend, father and overall a great person. He will be missed by so many

“ Jason Leach here ~

Something I shared with Tom Martin as we chatted and texted in reflection the day Shawn died.

"Thanks for the chat. I definitely miss hanging out with ya Tom! And really our whole circle of friends over the years. And how some circles were interwoven with other circles. And one person's circle became multiple people's circle. And the incomprehensible vastness of the idea of what was meant to be, is now realized all these years later.

Staggering to think about it in those terms.

Which is why I think the entirety of our circle of friends is truly something special.

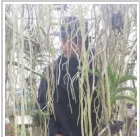

Shawn, was a part of this "something special" we all have.

Everyone means so much. More than we'll ever know.

And it's a blessing we've realized it, lived it, experienced it.

To know it completely. To come full circle."

“ Forgive me Jennifer... Yellow Monza. Camping out for ZZ Top tickets. Walking from my house to his... and not always making it back.... Getting stuck on Coffee Rd with a flat tire in the Fundai and laughing about it. The apartment off Redan. Being at Vince and Diane's wedding and my wife saying, "He has the most devilish grin. Are you guys gonna get in trouble?" I replied, "You have no idea..."
