In all her positions over the course of her career, Tanya was beloved and cherished by her coworkers and she loved them as well. Tanya appreciated the simple things in life and she always went with the flow. She loved to be outside. She loved flowers, and going to the park. Being one with nature brought her joy. She loved all earthly and natural things. Her favorite colors were green and purple. Tanya enjoyed reading and writing poetry. She loved to dance and she loved music. She specifically enjoyed jazz, encouraged her sons to play in the band, and loved to listen to Kenny G over a glass of red, tart wine and a charcuterie board. She was adventurous in the kitchen and was always ready to try new meals, especially if potatoes were involved. She also really loved oysters. Tanya's laughter was contagious and she was a jokester. She was intelligent, generous, and hilarious. She wasn't just a mother to her children, she was also a mother to their friends and to her loved ones. If you were at Tanya's house you knew there was going to be laughter, and there was never a dull moment around her and her kids. They would always be cuddling, laughing, joking, playing, listening to music and taking pictures. Tanya was a beautiful soul, a loving, kind, and caring individual whose smile lit up a room. She had so much charm and charisma that people gravitated to her and fell in love with her as soon as they met her. Tanya always said that her children were her biggest and greatest accomplishment. She was independent and strong-willed, and her family was her compass. Tanya was also everyone's biggest cheerleader. She would never let you tell yourself something couldn't happen. Tanya was the kind of person who would take the shirt off of her back to help

anyone.

“ So sorry to hear of Tanya passing. My daughter Danielle and she were the best of friends in high school. I loved her spirit, always pleasant and respectful. I seen her some years after Danielle moved to Ohio. I heard Mr. Long, Mr. Long, in the distance, I turned. There she was with that big bright smile that I remembered, hugged me showing the same love and respect. She will be so missed. My condolences and prayers for you the family.
