“ 13 years and I'm just now starting my grieving phase. I miss you dad. I don't know how I went this long without saying it, but I do. I miss you. I understand things a lot more being a 30 year old woman now. I was 17 when I lost you and today, it feels fresh all over again. I'm sorry no one was able to help you. I still have the bible you wrote me a letter in telling me how much you love me and telling me steps on how to say “no” to drugs. I became a nurse. Just like you told me to do. So that I could help people like you. That's the one conversation we had that I remember. Obviously, I know you'll never see this; but it makes me feel better to write out. I love you.

“ Bubba, My dear childhood friend, sweetheart, and skating partner. Its almost been a year and it seems that death is what brought us together again after many long years and now it has taken you away. I will always cherish those moments as young teenagers in love and those few hours I was able to visit with you when you had visited with your mom. It seems you had remembered so much from our younger years that I had just let slip by. I have got the GT back the one you showed me how to speed shift in. It runs like heck and 25 years later its just as bad as the day you drove it. I wish you could have come and worked with Sugar and trained him like you did Jake. It would have been so nice.. Love you always my dear friend, Tracy Gibson
